How to Enter a ROL video competition ?

- You will need your own Youtube account – unless you are going to arrange for someone else to enter on your behalf. Entry fees need to be paid via Paypal – either by having your own Paypal account, or you may use a credit/debit card.
- Check which level you are eligible to enter, and then decide which class you want to enter, download the course plan – and be aware that not all of the details on the plan may show up if looking at it on a phone (e.g. camera position)... printing it out or looking on a laptop is most reliable.
- Sort out what you are going to use for signs and sign holders – you do not have to use "official" signs – but a marker for each exercise must be in view – so the judge knows where you intend to start each exercise.
- Layout your course, film yourself and your dog working the course – watch your video back – check that your video meets all the rules and regulations to be accepted into the competition .....
- Once you have a video to submit, upload it to your own Youtube account. When it is uploaded, check that the privacy settings are either "public" or "unlisted" – these are the only privacy settings that allow the ROL admin team & judge to be able to watch it. Ideally title your video so that it is clearly identified for the event – e.g. "2961 Sally & Lace July 26 L1". Then find the button next to your video – "share" – click on this and you should get a link that is in this type of format - https://youtu.be/E0y6WwUVi1k Copy this link rather than trying to type it all in again....
- Go to the ROL website entry form – and paste this link into the class that you want to enter, add the other details to your entry form, click on submit – and the website should then take you to the payment page.
- ROL admin will then receive emails with your entry form and confirmation that you have paid. Your round then moves on to verification – which it needs to pass before being accepted into the competition and listed in the class for judging.
- If your entry passes verification it will appear on the class lists on the ROL website within 2 days of submission, or if there is a verification issue notification will be sent to the email address on the entry form to advise what the problem is.
